WASHINGTON - Ever wonder how the wife can tell vhen you've been tippling on the sly? According to one psychlatrist, you may be giving yourself away by gin galt, rum-lip or beer bulge.

Dr. E. Y. Williams, head of the neuro-psychiatry department at Howard University, told of these and other symptoms peculiar to particular types of booze in a report presented at meetings of the National Medical Association

Gin gait, according to Williams, is a tendency to lift the legs high "as though walking on cotton." Rum drinkers can be spotted by a reddening of the lower lip or their squinting eyes. And beer drinkers have a tendency to gain eight, often resulting in the familiar "beer belly," Williams also found that different beverages often have mental symptoms of their own. He said his study of 500 Alcoholics indicated that heavy drinkers of gin tend to hold on to their marriages, while wine drinkers have a high divorce and separation rate.

Large amounts of whisky do the most physical damage to the body of any form of alcohol, Williams said. Beer cuts the appetite and whets the thirst.

FRANKFURT - Three hundred Polish bank clerks imprisoned in Auschwitz death camp were shot because they urinated while facing a train carrying German soldiers wounded on the Russian front, a court was told here today.

Friedrich Hirsch, a driver from Felbach, West Germany, who was an Auschwitz prisoner for three years, told the court trying 21 former camp staff on mass murder charges that this was considered an offence.

CARACAS, Venezuela — Harvard Prof. L. F. Quigley says one solution to the tobacco problem may be to sm eigarettes with the hot end inside the mouth, as Venezuelan washerwomen do.

Quigley told an international dental-science convention here that Harvard researchers are conducting a study of 300 washerwomen which has produced the following observations so far:

-None of those under study shows any symptom of cancer.

—They do not seem to be inconvenienced by the tem-perature of the burning cigarette, which may approach 1,600 degrees Fahrenheit. They do have to remember, though, to remove the cigarette and flick off the ash before it gets long enough to fall into the mouth.

HEREFORD, Tex. — Garret B. Trapnell, 26, probably always wanted to be a lawman.

He probably played cops and robbers as a boy, using a toy pistol and policeman's badge.

But the highway patrol thought he was a little old for the game Thursday and they jailed him for it.

It wouldn't have been so bad except Trapnell set up operations on heavily travelled U.S. 66 near the Texas-New Mexico border and began fining motorists on the spot.

Using a cheap tin constable's badge and a dir pistol for effect, he parked his car at the side of the road and put some portable flashing red lights on it.

Then he flagged down motorists and gave them a stern dressing down for speeding. Some he fined. Others he "let go" on $15 bond. First reports of the strange constable came last week when a motorist from California complained to the highway patrol in Albuquerque that he had been stopped near San Jon, N.M., by an officer who said he was G. B. Trapnell, Constable No. 116 of Garrett Township, N.M. The motorist said he paid a $15 bond.

Officers checked and found out there was no such township and no such constable, trap and highway patrolman A. L. Mitchell investigated. He found Trapnell sitting in his car near Vega, Tex., close to the New Mexico border.

Trapnell was dressed in a khaki uniform and had an abundant supply of cheap constable and deputy badges, a rubber stamp to make citations look legal, and a "Dick Tracy-type toy pistol."

He has been charged with extortion and impersonating

But there have been other equally contentious judgments, such as those regarding racial equality, abolition of prayers in public schools, disallowance of censorship of certain allegedly obseene books, issuance of passports to Communists, and so on. As one publication says, it looks as though the Court has set out to protect "Negroes, Communists, news-papers, criminals, dirty books, atheists and urban masses." In some political quarters, all of these items are of doubtful worth.

The net result of all this, some observers fear, could be that the reaction against the trend of the Supreme Court's decisions may lead to legislative moves to curb its powers or perhaps reverse the effect of is that which interprets the consti- its judgments. ONE THING can be said for certain about the up-coming Centennial celerations-they will nudge the prairie audiforium architects to the top of the heap in the earnings derby. They will also be a shattering blow to the Canadian fitness program. If present plans are achieved, western Canadians will spend most of their evening hours ensconced in deeply padded seats, fiddling with programs, improving their minds and being cul-turally elevated. The demand for ushers, guides, ticket sellers and janitors could absorb all the country's surplus labor

Small Qualification

There is a small qualification-if the various squabbling groups, boards, authorities and negative-thinking Joe Citizens ever get around to getting the building built. In Saskatchewan, for example, the Thatcher administration has warned both Regina and Saskatoon to come back down to earth, and right now

Both cities had plans for $6,000,000 auditoria in the works, having been egged on by the Lloyd administration. The CCF government had agreed to provide each city with a grant of $2,000,000 and each hoped for a big slice of the federal government's $3,500,000 grant to Saskatchewan. The Thatcher government has cut its commitment to a total of $2,500,000 for both auditoria.

How the federal grant is to be shared not yet known. Saskatoon is fearful that may all on to Regina as the capital city If that should happen, the auditorium the extra space for some years.

Before the election, Saskatoon had al-ready hired away the manager from the Jubilee Auditorium in Calgary for a cabinet minister's salary. Then it sent him on a tour to far-off Florida, and points between, to look at what the neighbors had produced. He discovered that Windsor was able to build the magnificent Cleary auditorium for less than $3,000,000. Saskatoon is now beginning to shed some of its Thatchered gloom, to hope for the best and settle for something less than the Taj Mahal. In both Regina and Saskatoon, planning is now proceeding but very cau-tiously because the province has held up the planning grants made to both cities.

Only ir Moose Jaw does the future look serene. Here it is the cultural aspects of the animal kingdom which are to be elevated. The City is planning a $1,000,000 zoo, the only city to choose one for a Centennial project.

In Alberta, the province itself built Identical "Jubilee" auditoria at Calgary and Edmonton in 1955. Both are equipped with every facility known to man, could probably accommodate a circus performance between the acts of a grand opera. With a permanent staff of 60, the Calgary centre operates at a deficit of about $300,000 a year, not counting interest on the $6,000,000 original cost.

Calgary-Edmonton

The existence of these halls takes both Calgary and Edmonton out of the auditorium market. Calgary is planning to construct a plush-seated $1,500,000 Planetarium while the provincial government is eyeing a $10,000,000 cultural and historical centre in Edmonton.

Edmonton is proceeding with construc-tion of a $3,000,000 Centennial Library at its civic centre. It recently decided to double the original three-storey height of project-a $10,000,000 Arts Centre. It is being built by the provincial government as a sort of combination urban renewal and monument to culture. It was originally to have included a planetarium, a concert hall, a museum and an art centre to replace a lot of sub-standard business property on Main Street. The Art Gallery people pulled out so the plan is proceeding thout an art gallery.

The Manitoba government's project will be the biggest in the West. But perhaps most imaginative is the proposal to construct a new natural park along the Asinipoine River valley in southwestern Manitoba. A group of small towns 40 odd miles west of Brandon has the project well in hand. Land along the river is now being acquired and a combination wilderness area and recreational park is to be built.

Imaginative

South western Manitoba is poorly served with water sports facilities and the Assini-boine River in one of it beautiful stretches lends itself to development. The project underlines an important development in Western Canada—the provision of recreational facilities for farm areas.

In the smaller centres of the west, Cen-nnial projects are being discussed on a fittingly more modest and practical scale than in the larger cities. They run to com-binations of things—a combined curling rink and community centre for example

It will be a poor community indeed nich will head into the second century with its cultural facilities unimproved. How long it will take for community cultural tastes to eatch up with the facilities is another matter. The existence of the Jubilee Auditoria in Edmonton and Calgary has attracted touring theatrical and musical groups to the cities. The addition of first-rate concert halls in Winnipeg, well If that should happen, the auditorium the city has been saving up for all these years, and has already saved more than $500,000, ada, Winnipeg naturally got into a first-will go down the drain.

Revolt of Mr. Snifkin

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

THE Canadian government has set up some sort of expert council to protect the Canadian consumer but I doubt that it knows anything about the consumer, not pated consumer anyway or the great consumers' revolt launched by my neigh-bor, Mr. Horace Snifkin. If the government hadn't been so preoce-pied with triviial mat-ters like the national budget it would have foreseen this revolution years ago when Hutchison Mr. Snifkin stubbornly refused to borrow money for the purchase of a second auto

His treason went further than that. He said bluntly that he could afford two automobiles and could only drive one at a time. This callous assault on the North American dream naturally shocked the automobile salesmen but they kept quiet, lest the heresy spread and ruin the eco nomic system. Instead, they circulated the rumor that Mr. Snifkin was in his dotage and everybody believed it sane man refuses a second automobile and no patriotic citizen pays for it in cash.

When Mr. Snifkin insisted on paying eash for everything, and would not accep a charge account at any store, his credit, of course, was instantly destroyed. storekeeper in his right mind would trust

Banker's Warning

Mr. Snifkin's bank manager took him aside privately and warned him that his behavior, if widely followed, would bring the national economy crashing down in general disaster. But Mr. Snifkin con-tinued to pay cash and didn't even overdraw his bank account. Fortunately his example was not imitated and the nation remained prosperous.

Meanwhile Mr. Snifkin had begun to meditate darkly about his status as a consumer and his thoughts, as the Mounted Police failed to observe, were very dangerous.

Adding up some simple tigures he con cluded that during the last year he had paid a third of his income in taxes or worked without wages some two days a week for the government, which turned out to be the largest of all consumers, yet produced nothing.

Moreover, he had paid about a thousand dollars in subsidies to the manufacturing industries in the form of prices on tariff-protected goods, while the manufacturers were bitterly denouncing the whole theory of subsidies to farmers or anybody else. Once Mr. Snifkin had calculated that a bottle of whisky was worth about 50 cents. and sold for $5 in the government liquor stores, the consumers' revolt was well under way. And when he became a total abstainer the ruin of the state treasury could be foreseen.

As a few old friends reminded him, the government would go bankrupt if tem-perance broke out. Mr. Snifkin wouldn't listen. The man was cold sober and ut-terly reckless. He even paid off the mortgage on his house. The mortgage company tried to sue him but apparently there is some absurd loophole in the law which Parliament, no doubt, will soon

That Daily Bread

Having given up tobacco as a further protest, Mr. Snifkin found his youthful sense of taste returning and realized that there was no real food on his dinner table. Further investigation convinced him that his daily bread was made of sawdust mixed with plaster while Canada's wheat was sold to Russians and Chinese to nourish the Communist conspiracy.

Mrs. Snifkin started to bake her own bread, out of actual wheat. The experiwas pretty expensive since her guests, discovering the staff of life for the first time, developed ravenous appetites but she went on baking to defy gov-ernment and prove that bread is still possible even in a civilized country

Mr. Snifkin's inquiries also satisfied him that most Canadians had never tasted a ham or a chicken. Commercial ham, he learned, is manufactured by the plastics industry, of nylon, pink coloring matter and other harmless chemicals. Chickens are made of wood pulp from the British Columbia forest industry and cunningly moulded in a secret factory, by General Motors.

This efficient system maintains high employment and injures no one except a few non-smokers, the Canadian palate, like any vestigial organ, having disappeared long ago. Mr. Snifkin has solved his personal problem by growing his own vegetables in place of the cellophane synthetics produced by Dupont in Florida and California but not many householders are likely to take such desperate risks. The economy seems safe for the mor

Worried

Nevertheless, the Canadian government obviously worrled when it sets up a new bureau to protect the consumers from themselves. The Ottawa experts must un-derstand that the Snifkin revolt, if not ric of society and Mr. Pearson is wisely diverting the public mind from these subversive doctrines by raising the flag issue

It will take more than a flag to divert Mr. Snifkin. If the government knew about his latest strategy it would probably throw in the sponge and resign. Ed Shufell and Mrs. the risk of stretching his confidence, J Sally, have been arlived a whole year within his income, to the despair of his bank manager, is driving a car built in 1960 and yesterday in stalled a primitilve alcoholic still in hi basement. He promises me a sample of his home-made, untaxed beverage next ered at the Willows week, after it has fully aged and matured.

Famous Cast Mords

London: A British BARTOLOMEO VANZETTI

Executed for murder, he wrote a last at a south coast he letter: "... I wish to tell you ... that tel, fell in his bed I am innocent. I have never done a through a five-story crime. Maybe, oh yes, sometimes I have, hole blasted by a done some sin, but not a crime . . . wish to forgive some people for what they are now doing to me."

Usually there is no happier role than that of the prophet who can say after a public outcry: "And I said it years ago" I am both too young and too tainted as an active politician to get kudos for prefiguring the criticism of parliamentary newsmen and the House of Commons which has flourished this last week, triggered by the Couchiching Conference.

Back in 1958 I wrote an article in the Canadian Forum on the Press Gallery which covered all the plaints which welled up from both politicians and audience at Couchiching to the shock of the press panel of Charles Lynch, Norman Depoe, and Christopher

But let us fix today on the Press Gallery issue, not least because Peter Dempson, The Telegram's bureau chief in Ottawa, uttered such a bleat from the heart last Friday in defence of himself and his colleagues. This demonstrated one of the funniest aspects of political journalists in Canada: They are tender plants, even more tender than the politi-

Smoothies, Diplomats

I chuckle whenever I think of that dis-tinguished panel at Couchiching, discovering the audience was hostile. Not only are Lynch, Depoe, and Young high in the pecking order of the Press Gallery barnyard, the first two are smoothies, diplomats, doyens, pundits almost anything that suggests top opinion-moulders of dexterity in the craft. That they should get the raspberry is as irreverent as the Queen being blamed for faults of the pantry staff in Buckingham Palace.

The hostility of the Couchiching audience to the press is not the one given for the roar against the newsmen at the Republican convention that chose Goldwater. It had nothing to do with a popular right-wing hero (like John Diefenbaker) being slandered by the liberally-minded media men. It came from the snobbism of this Canadian audience, educated, literate and stuffy as it is. This kind of Canadian has a fixation that our daily newspapers should be combinations of the New York Times, the London Economist, and the Manchester Guardian. They want more scholarship, detail, and idealism than either the pockets of Canadian publishers or the skills of Canadian journalists can provide

Better and Better Men

In my opinion, Canadian papers have been getting better and better men onto the report-ing and interpretation of Ottawa politics. But there was and is a long way to go. Mr. Demp son is very wrong, I believe, in saying that an Ottawa posting is the summit of the craft and suggesting that the gallery has the top hands. For every solid digging reporter like Jim Stewart (Montreal Star), Bob Needham (London Free Press), and Ron Collister (The Telegram), for every specialist in a field such Dave McIntosh (Canadian Press), Macdonald (Globe and Mail), and Maurice Western (Winnipeg Free Press), there are chaps who are inadequate and lazy and terribly

Couchiching beefs which Mr. Dempson made into an unconscious parody. He was correct in saying Davie Fulton has had what might be called a "good press" from the gallery. In fact, most of the participating politicians at the conference, George Nowlan, Stanley Knowles, Pauline Jewett and the rest have been somewhat favorites of the newspapermen. It is fair comment that this has been because of both their good personalities and their newsmaking abilities. Mr. Dempson is querulous about Fulton biting the hands that fed him. Why shouldn't he? Why should everything be hearts and flowers between press and politicians? This is one of the Ottawa Press Gallery's real afflictions.

Price of Small World

Reciprocated crushes and antagonisms develop and deepen. Lester Pearson is still benefiting from the one, John Diefenbaker suffering from the other. It seems to be the price of the small Ottawa world. The Commons is no longer in any basic way the place where the persuasiveness of politicians convinces each other, particularly in other parties. Probably it never was. It is much more a platform for firing propaganda messages out to the electorate.

The politicians tend to look on press gallery members as their own arms or as their enemies. It is an ambivalent love-hate relationship. The politician wants the long re-port and the favorable interpretation of his line. The journalist wants to belong, to be respected, to have his contacts and sources.

Much better for all, I say, if both the war and the love-feast were cancelled. Neither is as bad as the other sometimes thinks or as good as he himself believes. May I con-clude with what is not an olive branch to the journalists. They, I believe, have shown more improvement in recent years than have the politicians.

players and members of the Kansas City grounds crew doused each other with water and engaged in an exchange of fruit throwing before Thursday's game between the Yankees and the Athletics.

Wednesday night the A's grounds crew, riding in a fire truck which will be given away here later this season, squirted the Yankee players as the truck was driven around the field. The second time around the Yankees retaliated by throwing wet towels.

Thursday the grounds crew members added fruit and tomatoes to their arsenal. The Yankees

The truck made two trips around the field and preparing to make a third trip when Frank Umont, the plate umpire, stepped away from the pre-game conference at the plate and told George Toma, who was driving the truck, that the affair had gone far enough.

Toma drove on past the Yankee dugout, only at a greater distance. There was another throwing exchange as the truck passed the Yankee bullpen.

A bucket was thrown at one of the Yankee players. Toma drove the truck on to centre field and out was one of the three $14,878.80 winners of the twin double at Detroit Race Course Thursday.

Mrs. Jacquelyn Beattle, 23-year-old waitress, went to the races with her aunt, Mrs. Anna Bailey. Each hit the TD. The third winner did not put in an appearance.

Mrs. Beattle, wife of a factory worker and mother of two children, said she picked the winning horses in the $3-3-2-6 combo "because I liked their names best."

They were Jaunty Lass, $10.20; Ima Mistake, $26.60; Dinky's Boy, $10.60, and Paspartout, $13.

The winner of Wednesday's $37,240.20 TD waited until Thursday to collect. His identity was not disclosed. Track spokesmen said he extracted a promise of secrecy. The Wednesday pot, topping the previous Michigan record

Sea Cadets Climb Along . . .

With a sharp click of his heels and a "Welcome aboard, sir," the young man in the navy uniform snapped to at-tention — all four-and-a-half feet of him.

The place was HMCS Quadra, a sea cadet camp on Goose Spit near Comox.

During July and August nearly 1,000 young sea cadets come from as far east as Winnipeg to spend two weeks

Each contingent of 225 includes 25 U.S. sea cadets here on an exchange program which has sent Canadian cadets to U.S. camps.

Jog Along

The cadets drill, swim, practical - seamanship, polish up their shooting, and take turns at service duty.

And between every activity, from the time the boys rise at six in the morning until lights out at 10:30 at night, the cadets jog along at double

North American innovation that would have the greatest impact in Japan is the baby

This is the conviction of Mrs. Y. Hiratsuka who is here from Tokyo with her husband, Dr. Hiratsuka while he studies at the provincial forest entomology and pathological laboratory.

Says this young Japanese housewife: "Baby sitters could be the key to a whole new way. of life for mothers in my coun There, no matter how well you know a woman outside your family, or how good with children she is, you wouldn't leave your children with her.

"If you did, you'd be labelled a poor mother. This sort of thinking keeps our women in the home much more."

But as in North America Japanese women are regular attenders at PTA meetings and gradual introduction of house-hold gadgets has increased the that housewives can spend outside the home.

KEEP HER BUSY

Although Mrs. Hiratsuka has lived in "the land of the baby sitter" for 4½ years she still works many hours in their Gar-den Park Court home, looking after two sturdy sons, Koji, four, and two-year-old Joji (Japanese

- MILD CASE

There are about 400,000,000 persons in the world blinded by trachoma, a chronic eye "We were lucky it was only a mild case of the bends. John had been working pretty hard for the past six weeks and I guess it gradually crept up on nim." said his employer, Alan Black.

"He's in pretty good shape now and I've got two airline tickets so we expect to be back on the job tomorrow," he added Thursday afternoon when his diver was doing his four-hour stint in the recompression

The attack of the bends began wernight Wednesday with a pain in Flury's elbow which moved up to his shoulder. By morning he was nauseated and having visual trouble.

He was picked up from Jed-way on Moresby Island, near the southern tip of the Queen Charlottes by a Beaver Airlines float plane from Port Hardy.

The aircraft brought him to Esquimalt harbor in 41/2 hours.

Farmlands Declining In Region

Farmland has decreased fast Metchosin in the last 10 years, according to George Atamenko assistant director of the Capital Region Planning Board.

He told a meeting in North Saanich, Thursday that a total 5,000 acres of agricultural land has been bought for subdecade. Dr. William Newton, forme director of the Dominion Ex perimental farm at Saanich ton, who also spoke at the meet ing on "land use", predicted that three times as much land will be used for housing in the next 20 years. The two speakers felt some thing should be done to stabilize agricultural land before it is too late

"Land is not replaceable," said Mr. Atamenenko.

Dr., Newton said there are a umber of possible solutions such as reducing taxation on farm land.

Another would be for the gov ernment to purchase farms and to lease them back on a long term basis, he said.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The easiest thing to do when watching pay-TV is to run up a bill. If the high cost has been tallied while watching programs of doubtful merit then enthusiasm for the system runs down very

This is now happening in Los Angeles where pay-TV was introduced a month ago. Some of the subscribers vision Inc. (STV) will have to upgrade the quality of its programming, to continue to hold viewers , and dollars.

Daily Variety, the skow business trade paper, conducted a spot check among subscribers and reported while Stephen still retain their initial zeal, a number were critical of programming, and indicated they will watch the programming schedule carefully so as not to run

There was even one customer who said that to date the system has failed to provide that "extra special" something which would give it a great advantage over free-TV.

The big draw was the L.A. Dodgers baseball games. But, what happens when they go on the road?

Pay-TV has been tried in other parts of North America with so-so results. In most cases, the system has not gained new customers but rather lost those it started out with because it couldn't deliver the needed viewing goods.

The California system is still in the embryonic stage and will bear further watching before any final decisions can be reached.

TID EITS: A full-hour color film based on Sir Winston Churchill's book, "Painting as a Pastime," will be produced in England and will be given its North American premiere on the British statesman's 90th birthday, Monday, Nov. 20. The film will be telecast the same day in the United Kingdom, the Commonwealth and other commonwealt wealth and other nations.

Mary Martin will star in a lavish 90-minute program, "Mary Martin Presents Easter at the Radio City Music Hall," next year: The date is still to be set by NBC-TV. . . Buddy Hackett, Oscar Levant and Jan Murray have been signed to guest-star on Joey Bishop's CBS-TV series next season.

Golf professional Cary Middlecoff will team up with sportscasters Bud Palmer, Chick Hearn and Jack Brickhouse as commentators for NBC-TV's coverage of the Third Annual World Series of Golf on Sept. 12 and 13. Arnold Palmer, Ken Venturi, Tony Lema and Bobby Nichols will be playing for $50,000 first prize

"I said she was behaving like a cook," the actress said.

Mrs. Marcow denied she had insulted Miss Gabor, but the latter insisted she had. "I am going to sue her right up to the hilt," said Miss Gabor. "Fil make mince pies

Miss Gabor said Prince Rainier, the ruler of Monaco, told her the remarks had reached the ear of Hollywood producer Sam Goldwyn who is in Monte Carlo and he said I would not get any work in America." Miss Gabor said as a result she withdrew from a Red Cross gala in Monaco in which she was to appear tonight before Rainler and Princess Grace. With her husband and daughter Francesca, the actress took off shortly after noon for Los Angeles.

WASHINGTON - Ever wonder how the wife can tell when you've been tippling on the sly?

According to one psychlatrist, you may be giving yourtelf away by gin gait, rum-lip or beer buige.

Dr. E. Y. Williams, head of the neuro-psychiatry department at Howard University, told of these and other symp-toms peculiar to particular types of booze in a report presented at meetings of the National Medical Association Gin galt, according to Williams, is a tendency to lift the legs high "as though walking on cotton." Rum drinkers can be spotted by a reddening of the lower lip or their squinting eyes. And heer drinkers have a tendency to gain weight, often resulting in the familiar "beer belly." Williams also found that different beverages often have mental symptoms of their own. He said his study of 500 Alcoholics indicated that heavy drinkers of gin tend to hold on to their marriages, while wine drinkers have a high divorce and separation rate. Large amounts of whisky do the most physical damage to the body of any form of alcohol, Williams said. Beer cuts

HEREFORD, Tex. - Garret B. Trapnell, 26, probably always wanted to be a lawman.

He probably played cops and robbers as a boy, using a toy pistol and policeman's badge.

But the highway patrol thought he was a little old for the game Thursday and they jalled him for it.

It wouldn't have been so bad except Trapnell set up operations on heavily-travelled U.S. 66 near the Texas-New Mexico border and began fining motorists on the spot. Using a cheap tin constable's badge and a dime-store pistol for effect, he parked his car at the side of the road and put some portable flashing red lights on it. Then he flagged down motorists and gave them a stern dressing down for speeding. Some he fined. Others he "let go" on $15 bond. First reports of the strange constable came last week when a motorist from California complained to the highway patrol in Albuquerque that he had been stopped near San-Jon, N.M., by an officer who said he was G. B. Trapnell Constable No. 116 of Garrett Township, N.M.

The motorist said he paid a $15 bond.

Officers checked and found out there was no such township and no such constable.

Finally, a truck driver tipped officers about a speed trap and highway patrolman A. L. Mitchell investigated. He found Trapnell sitting in his car near Vega, Tex., close to the New Mexico border.

Trapnell was dressed in a khaki uniform and had an abundant supply of cheap constable and deputy badges, a rubber stamp to make citations look legal, and a "Dick policy takes the spotlight, many quarters in Washington continue to be concerned about a domestic problem which could have far-reaching effects. It concerns the Supreme Court and the rising oppo-sition to some of its recent decisions.

There was a time, during President Franklin D. Roosevelt's era, the Supreme Court came under fire for its conservatism. This led to the famous denunciation of 'nine old men" and the president's efforts to pack the court with mem-bers more amenable to his liberal policies Today, the opposite situation obtains. The Supreme Court is on record with a series of judgments of a progressive nature which have roused the opposition of people who feel that the court is advancing too quickly—that it is trying, in fact, to a precursor of the legislature in reform movements. The most recent ruling, of course is that which interprets the constitution to mean that representation in both houses of state legislatures must be based on population. In a number of cases it has become the custom to elect members of one house from geographic areas. result has been that many sections of the population have a disproportionate say in their state govern-

WHILE SOUTHEAST ASIAN of forty. In other cases, sparsely settled tracts of wilderness have an equal voice with cities. A number of powerful political figures are elected on the basis of this sort of represenation. There will therefore be a bitter fight against the Supreme Court's ruling.

But there have been other equally contentious judgments, such as those regarding racial equality, abolition of prayers in public schools, dis-allowance of censorship of certain allegedly obscene books, issuance of passports to Communists, and so on. As one publication says, it looks as though the Court has set out to protect "Negroes, Communists, news-papers, criminals, dirty-books, atheists and urban masses." In some political quarters, all of these items are of doubtful worth.

The net result of all this, some observers fear, could be that the reaction against the trend of the Supreme Court's decisions may lead to legislative moves to curb its powers or perhaps reverse the effect of its judgments. Indeed, one member of the court, Mr. Justice Harlan, has warned that the court should not try to cure every social ill in the country or "take the lead in promoting reform when other branches of government fail to act." His thought is that the court should try to make haste more slowly in order to avoid bringing heavy opposition, and adverse legislation, against itself. This may become one of the major domestic issues in this election

There is a small qualification-if the various squabbling groups, boards, authorities and negative-thinking Joe Citizens ever get around to getting the building built. In Saskatchewan, for example, the Thatcher administration has warned both Regina and Saskatoon to come back down to earth, and right now, Both cities had plans for $6,000,000 Calgary-Edmonton auditoria in the works, having been egged on by the Lloyd administration. The CCF government had agreed to provide each city with a grant of $2,000,000 and each hoped for a big slice of the federal government's $3,500,000 grant to Saskatchewan. The Thatcher government has cut its commitment to a total of $2,500,000 for both auditoria.

How the federal grant is to be shared is not yet known. Saskatoon is fearful that it may all go to Regina, as the capital city. city has been saving up for all these years

Before the election, Saskatoon had already hired away the manager from the Jubilee Auditorium in Calgary for a cabinet minister's salary. Then it sent him on a tour to far-off Florida, and points be-tween, to look at what the neighbors had produced. He discovered that Windsor was able to build the magnificent Cleary auditorium for less than $3,000,000. Saskatoon is now beginning to shed some of its Thatchered gloom, to hope for the best and settle for something less than the Taj Mahal. In both Regina and Saskatoon, planning is now proceeding but very cau-tiously because the province has held up the planning grants made to both cities.

Only in Moose Jaw does the future look serene. Here it is the cultural aspects of the animal kingdom which are to vated. The City is planning a $1,000,000 zoo, the only city to choose one for a Centennial project.

In Alberta, the province itself built identical "Jubilee" auditoria at Calgary and Edmonton in 1855. Both are equipped with every facility known to man, could probably accommodate a circus performance between the acts of a grand opera. With a permanent staff of 60, the Calgary centre operates at a deficit of about $300,000 a year, not counting interest on the $6,000,000 original cost.

The existence of these halls takes both Calgary and Edmonton out of the auditorium market. Calgary is planning to construct a plush-seated $1,500,000 Planetarium while the provincial government is eyeing a $10,000,000 cultural and historical centre in Edmonton.

Edmonton is proceeding with construc-tion of a $3,000,000 Centennial Library at its civic centre. It recently decided to double the original three-storey height of the building, even though it won't need the project-a $10,000,000 Arts Centre. It is being built by the provincial government as a sort of combination urban renewal and monument to culture. It was originally to have included a planetarium, concert hall, a museum and an art centre to replace a lot of sub-standard business property on Main Street. The Art Gallery people pulled out so the plan is proceeding without an art gallery.

The Manitoba government's project will the biggest in the West. But perhaps most imaginative is the proposal to construct a new natural park along the Asiniboine River valley in southwestern Manitoba. A group of small towns 40 odd miles west of Brandon has the project well in hand. Land along the river is now being acquired and a combination wilderness area and recreational park is to be built.

Imaginative

South western Manitoba is poorly served with water sports facilities and the Assiniboine River in one of it beautiful stretches lends itself to development. The project underlines an important developm Western Canada—the provision of recrea-tional facilities for farm areas.

In the smaller centres of the west, Cen-tennial projects are being discussed on a fittingly more modest and practical scale than in the larger cities. They run to combinations of things—a combined curling rink and community centre for example. It will be a poor community indeed which will head into the second century with its cultural facilities unimproved How long it will take for community cul-tural tastes to catch up with the facilities is another matter. The existence of the Jubilee Auditoria in Edmonton and Calgary has attracted touring theatrical and musical groups to the cities. The addition of first-rate concert halls in Winnipeg, Regina and Saskatoon may very well create a circuit which will make even and has already saved more than $500,000, ada. Winnipeg naturally got into a first-will go down the drain.

Tongue-In-Cheek

Mr. Stainsby's attack in the Times on Canon Butler and the group to which he belongs is a splendid example of tongue-in-cheek journalistic fury.

Mr. Stainsby knows perfectly well that no question of the liberty of the press or of personal choice of reading matter is involved. He cannot be unaware that all decent opinion in Canada deplores the lass of provocative "sex a publications presented to (in fact slanted towards) young people, on our bookstalls, and which would not be there but for the pressure of outside financial interests

Whether the methods adopted by this group in their effort to rouse public opinion to some sort of action are likely to succeed remains to be seen: at least their object is one entirely to be commended rather than condemned.

some sort of expert council to protect the Canadian consumer but I doubt that it knows anything about the consumer, not the modern, emancipated consumer any-way or the great consumers' revolt launched by my neighbor, Mr. Horace Snifkin. If the government hadn't been so preoccupied with triviial matters like the national budget it would have foreseen this revolution years ago when Hutchison Mr. Snifkin stubbornly refused to borrow money for the purchase of a second auto mobile. His treason went further than that. He said bluntly that he could afford two automobiles and could only drive one at a time. This callous assault on the North American dream naturally shocked the automobile salesmen but they kept quiet, lest the heresy spread and ruin the eco-nomic system. Instead, they circulated the rumor that Mr. Snifkin was in his dotage and everybody believed it. sane man refuses a second automobile and no patriotic citizen pays for it in cash.

When Mr. Snifkin insisted on paying eash for everything, and would not accept a charge account at any store, his credit, of course, was instantly destroyed. No storekeeper in his right storekeeper in his right mind would trust

Mr. Snifkin's bank manager took him aside privately and warned him that his behavior, if widely followed, would bring the national economy crashing down in general disaster. But Mr. Snifkin continued to pay cash and didn't even over-draw his bank account. Fortunately his example was not imitated and the nation remained prosperous.

Meanwhile Mr. Snifki.s had begun to meditate darkly about his status as a consumer and his thoughts, as the Mounted Police failed to observe, were very dangerous. Adding up some simple figures he concluded that during the last year he had paid a third of his income in taxes or worked without wages some two days a week for the government, which turned out to be the largest of all consumers, yet produced nothing.

Moreover, he had paid about a thousand dollars in subsidies to the manufacturing industries in the form of prices on tariff-protected goods, while the manufacturers were bitterly denouncing the whole theory of subsidies to farmers or

Once Mr. Snifkin had calculated that a bottle of whisky was worth about 50 cents and sold for $5 in the government liquor stores, the consumers' revolt was under way. And when he became a total abstainer the ruin of the state treasury could be foreseen.

As a few old friends reminded him, the government would go bankrupt if tem-perance broke out. Mr. Snifkin wouldn't listen. The man was cold sober and ut-terly reckless. He even paid off the mortgage on his house. The mortgage company tried to sue him but apparently there is some absurd loophole in the law which Parliament, no doubt, will soon

Having given up tobacco as a further cotest, Mr. Snifkin found his youthful sense of taste returning and realized that there was no real food on his dinner table. Further investigation convinced him that his daily bread was made of sawdust mixed with plaster while Can-ada's wheat was sold to Russians and Chinese to nourish the Communist con-

Mrs. Snifkin started to bake her own bread, out of actual wheat. The experiment was pretty expensive since her guests, discovering the staff of life for the first time, dev tites but she went on baking to defy ernment and prove that bread is still possible even in a civilized country.

Mr. Snifkin's inquiries also satisfied him that most Canadians had never tasted a ham or a chicken. Commercial ham, he learned, is manufactured by the plastics industry, of nylon, pink coloring matter and other harmless chemicals. Chickens are made of wood pulp from the British Columbia forest industry and cunningly moulded in a secret factory, by General Motors.

This efficient system maintains high employment and injures no one except a few non-smokers, the Canadian palate, like any vestigial organ, having disap-peared long ago. Mr. Snifkin has solved his personal problem by growing his own vegetables in place of the cellophane synthetics produced by Dupont in Florida and California but not many householders are likely to take such desperate risks. The economy seems safe for the moment.

Worried

Nevertheless, the Canadian government is obviously worrled when it sets up a new bureau to protect the consu themselves. The Ottawa experts must understand that the Snifkin revolt, if not suppressed, will threaten the entire fairric of society and Mr. Pearson is wisely diverting the public mind from these subversive doctrines by raising the flag issue.
It will take more than a flag to divert

Mr. Snifkin. If the government knew about his latest strategy it would probably throw in the sponge and resign. At the risk of stretching his confidence. I can only report here that Mr. Snifkin has lived a whole year within his income, to the despair of his bank manager, is driving a car built in 1960 and yesterday in-stalled a primitable alcoholic still in his basement. He promises me a sample of untaxed beverage next week, after it has fully aged and matured.
